Basianshan
National Forest Recreation Area

八仙山國家森林遊樂區位於臺中市和平區境內，主峰海拔高度2,366公尺，折算成台尺約「八千」，取其日語諧音而得「八仙」之名。本區擁有適合林木生長的海拔與氣候，豐富的檜木蓄積，原是八仙山林場-佳保台分場舊址，在臺灣森林開發史上曾有舉足輕重的地位。

遊樂區內規劃有半日輕鬆遊與一日健康遊等步道：前者繞植物標本園、靜海寺、生態教室、神社遺址、八景紀念碑一週；後者從八景紀念碑視遊客意願再延伸至櫻花林由森活亭接聯外道路回遊客服務中心。在步道間徐行漫步，群山環繞、林木蒼翠，伴隨著閩關鳥語、撲鼻花香，令人心曠神怡。雖然林木採伐的輝煌時代已經畫下句點，但留下鐵道與轉運道的遺跡，猶可尋覓懷想！

Basianshan National Forest Recreation Area is located in Heping District, Taichung City. The name 'Basian', meaning 'Eight Immortals', sounds like the Chinese for 8,000, which is the elevation in Taiwan feet of Basianshan Main Peak (2,424 meters). The climate and altitude are well-suited to forest growth and the region has abundant cypress reserves. Originally developed Basian Forestry Center and Jiabaotai Timber Yard by the Japanese, Basianshan played an important role in the development of Taiwan's forestry industry. There are two hiking trails within the Forest Recreation Area. One takes just half a day. It climbs wooden steps past the Plant Specimen Garden, Jinghai Temple, the Ecology Classroom, the Shinto Shrine ruins, and then back round to the Eight Scenic Spots Monument. The other is more challenging and requires a whole day to complete. It starts at the Eight Scenic Spots Monument and takes visitors through the Cherry Blossom Forest via the Forest Gazebo, along the road and then back to the Visitors Center. As you stroll along, take time to admire the tall mountains and green forests that surround you; listen to the chirruping birdsong and the sound of the river nearby; breathe in the fragrance of the forest; and open your heart. Although Taiwan's glorious logging past is long gone, sections of forest railway and transportation equipment are a reminder of those days.

蝶與鳥的觀察教室

瞧！在枝椏間上下跳躍的精靈，不時傳來輕快的哨音或婉轉的樂音，是黑枕藍鶇、冠羽畫眉、灰喉山椒還是…？請仔細聽聽，還能找到哪些山林歌手呢？山澗溪流邊的鳥兒們也不甘示弱，循著嘹亮的響聲，您可以發現臺灣紫嘯鶇、河鳥、鉛色水鶇們神氣活現的靈活身影！蝴蝶們也來湊熱鬧，溪邊、花叢間，翩翩蝶影正與您共遊八仙山呢！

赤腹山雀
Sitta parus varus

赤腹山雀習性較其他山雀更加隱密害羞，多在樹林中、上層活動，是本區最具特色的鳥類之一。林務局東勢林區管理處自2005年起特別為這些會利用樹洞築巢繁殖的小型雀鳥如棕面鶯及赤腹山雀、青背山雀、黃山雀，量身定製高級別墅木製鳥巢箱，三年來已有八隻赤腹山雀實實在鳥巢箱繁殖且成功離巢。駐足這些鳥巢箱下，您可以感受生命傳承躍動的喜悅。

Bird and Butterfly Living Classroom

Look! The whistling bird jumping from branch to branch, is it a Black-naped blue monarch (Hyophymis azurea), a Taiwan yuhina (Yuhina brunneiceps), or a Grey-chinned minivet (Pericrocotus solaris)? Listen closely and you will discover other songsters of the forest. The birds darting beside the rushing stream below are no less spectacular. If you follow the different melodies, you will catch glimpses of Taiwan whistling thrushes (Myophonus insularis), Brown dippers (Cinclus pallasi), and Plumbeous water redstarts (Rhyacornis fuliginosus). Butterflies also come and dance at the water's edge, flitting from flower to flower as they too make their way through Basianshan.

The Varied tit (Parus varius) is much shyer than other members of the chickadee family. They mainly inhabit the upper reaches of the forest and are a feature of Basianshan. In 2005, the Dongshih Forest District Office of the Forestry Department began building wooden nest boxes for small Passeriformes species like the Rufous-faced warbler (Abrosopos albogularis), the Varied tit, the Green-backed tit (Parus monticolus), and the Taiwan yellow tit (Parus holsti) that use tree holes to nest and breed. Three years later, eight Varied tit chicks have been successfully reared to adulthood in the nest boxes. Stand under the nest boxes and feel the power of life.

本區於日據時期與阿里山林場、太平山林場合稱為臺灣三大林場。早先是「木馬道」與大甲溪流便利採伐及集運木材，後改用纜車送至佳保台，再由森林火車運至土牛。全盛時期，設有辦公處、招待所、學校和相關的附屬設備，熱鬧非凡；然而現在此處只剩零散的木頭與廢棄的水池、土灶，僅留下鐵路或轉運作業道之遺跡猶可尋覓。

Basianshan Speaks of the Past

Basianshan was one of Taiwan's three major logging centers during the Japanese Occupation, alongside Alishan and Taipingshan. At first, timber was felled and transported using skidways and floated down the Dajia River. Subsequently, cableways were used to transport logs down to Jiabaotai from where they were taken to Tu-Niou via forest railway. At the peak of the logging industry, Basianshan Forestry Center was a bustling commercial center with offices, a guesthouse, school and related infrastructure. Today, all that remains are fragments of timber, disused pools and stoves, and sections of train track and transportation equipment.
